DAVIS DECLARES 'NO CONCLUSION' IN OFFICE PROBE

Grand Jurors Take No Action After Hearing Ex-Treasurer Hoffman

TEN PERSONS INDICTED

Most of Charges Returned Involve Chicken Thefts and Forgery

"Grand jurors have reached no definite conclusion concerning their investigation of the treasurer's office during the administration of Earl L. Hoffman," County Prosecutor Ray Davis announced late Friday when the jury report-

"The investigation is neither settled nor dismissed," the prosecu-

Mr. Hoffman, two former office employees, and two state examiners who checked the books of the office, were witnesses before the grand jury Friday. The case was reported taken before the jury "on information."

All Money Due Paid

When the state examiners completed their check of the books several months ago, Mr. Hoffman paid the county the amount reported due by the examiners.

The grand jury, exporting at 4:40 p. m. had considered 18 cases, examined 33 witnesses, ignored five cases and returned 13 indictments. One of the indictments was secret. A large number of the cases were for burglary and larceny involving chicken thefts.

Miller Dunkle, 22, Orren Rinehart, 27, and Millard Young, 46, all of Amanda Rt. 1, were indicted for burglary and larceny in theft of 25 chickens, March 30, from C. S. Cromley, Madison-twp.

Floyd Woods, 20, of Fayette-co, near New Holland, John Kerns, 18, and William Kearns, 20, and Everett Yarger, 20, all of Perry-twp, were indicted for burglary and larceny in theft of chicken from William Burris, New Holland, on Feb. 25. The indictment listed 631/2 pounds of chickens stolen.

Athlete Indicted

Herman Hicks, 24, of Waterloo, Fayette-co, baseball pitcher, was indicted on three charges of forgery. He was arrested recently by city and county officers after issuing checks to three local business places.

James Toles, 32, negro, S. Scioto-st, was indicted for burglary and larceny. He is charged with theft of two chickens on Feb. 29 from the henhouse of I. N. Robison, Huston-st.

James Burnett was indicted for burglary and larceny of an inhabited dwelling. The indictment charges he took various articles values at $28 from the home of James Crago on W. Main-st.

Cases ignored by the jury were: W. F. VanGundy, destruction of property; Herbert Viney, varrying concealed weapon; Catherine Shaeffer, slander, and Samuel Caldwell, carrying concealed wea-

TRENTON, N. J., April 4-(UP)-C. Lloyd Fisher, Bruno Richard Hauptmann's chief counsel, will claim his body at the state prison morgue today and arrange for its cremation, probably tomorrow, in New York City.

TRENTON, N. J., April 4 -(UP) - Bruno Richard Hauptmann's last cry of 'innocent" before he walked to the electric chair recorded the Lindbergh case today as the most controversial mystery of the century. Hauptmann died calmly, almost indifferently, with his thin lips sealed against the slightest hint of a con-

And with the deadly surge of electricity through his body, there died, too, perhaps the only chance that the world ever will know the factual story of the abduction and murder of the infant son of Col. and Mrs. Charles A. Lindbergh in the Sourland mountains four years

Many Not Convinced Around the world went the flash that the state of New Jersey had closed its books on the multi-million dollar Lindbergh case at 8:471/2 o'clock last night in the electrocution chamber of the gloomy old state prison. But just as surely there were millions who knew that Hauptmann had died and who still were convinced that he did not commit the crime alone. Hauptmann died on a stage set for a fantasy and in a fitting climax on a crime that piled sensation on sensation with such terrific momentum that even half an hour before the execution it appeared likely that the eternal "something would yet save Hauptmann's life for at least another

But at last the legend of the Lindbergh case had run its course, and in its final page Bruno Richard Hauptmann added a touch of the dignity of death. He was perhaps the calmest man in the little white room which society and chance had chosen for his death chamber.

All Efforts Fall

Every legal battle for life had failed him. At the last minute Gov. Harold G. Hoffman had announced reluctantly that he did not have the power to grant another reprieve. If ever there was a time when a man would speak from his heart that time for Hauptmann was at 8:30 p. m. Friday. He released the hands of two Lutheran ministers who stood beside him in the death cell. "Now just let me have a minute to myself," he said softly in Silently, he knelt on the cement floor beside a cot stripped even of its bedding. His head, clipped to receive the electrode of death, glistened in the light of an overhead bulb. Hauptmann prayed, For almost 10 minutes the man said his last prayer silently.

Then he lifted his face toward

DICK MELSON- I think that next year's team is going to be a peach. They are light but they make up for that in their blocking and tackling which is very good. The backfield has a lot of drive and can follow interference. I think they will go places next

GEORGE RADER—I think if the team keeps on cracking and driving like they did when they played against the seniors, they should have a good outfit. But, they also must remember that they were playing against a team in very poor condition, and most the teams they meet in the C. B. L. will be in fine shape. They have some very nice blocking which should help them plenty. They also have a pretty good line. All in all I'd say their chances look rather bright.

JOHN McGINNIS-My idea of next year varsity can be put in a few words. They are a bunch of hard driving young men who are headed for a number of victories next year. They are the kind of boys that won't give up until the last whistle is blown and that is is what it takes to win football.

HARVEY SWEYER-I think they have a good chance to go places because they have a line that blocks well. The backfield can really go places behind a good line like that.

Every thing will be fine if they just work together. This is one thing that has not been seen around C. H. S. for a long time. If you notice the seniors limping around you know they must be

JIM HENDERSON-If the team continues to block the way they did when they encountered the seniors, there is no doubt in my mind as to their showing on the gridiron this year. Take it from me, when they hit, they hit!

Jesus Invites All People

ILLUSTRATED SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

The Bible, especially Jesus' teachings, can teach us a great deal on etiquette. It was ill-mannered of Jesus' hosts to invite him on the sabbath and "plant" a sick man before him to trap Jesus into healing the man

It was also ill-mannered of the guests that day to jockey themselves into the chief seats at the tables. Unselfishness and humility are the first requirements of good manners. "He that humbleth himself shall be exalted."

It was ill-mannered of Jesus host to invite only those whom it paid him to invite. The selfishness that "has an axe to grind" at the dinner table is not a part of true hospitality or culture.

"Jesus Invites All People"

What sort of manners toward God do we show in offering excuses for refusing his invitations to his grace? No wonder he is hurt and calls in those from the highways that "his house may be filled." (GOLDEN TEXT-Luke 14:17)

ALL SET FOR NAVAL RACE

T IS perhaps charitable to observe that the new navy treaty signed at Iondon represents about the best that could be had in view of Japan's attitude, Italy's aloofness and the glowering menace of the Hitlerized Reich. Great Britain, France and the United States could scarcely be expected to make extensive concessions along lines of disarmament with so many disturbing factors visible at every hand.

The upshot of the treaty is that Great Britain and the United States virtually agree to maintain naval parity, but just where this will end if other nations insist upon engaging in a real naval race is by no means clear.

International conditions being what they are, no genuinely significant moves in the direction of arms reduction are at all possible. About everything that can be expected is the kind of a tentative and reluctant concord like that which has just issued from a parley in which the respective participants were jittery, suspicious and relatively insincere.

PASSAGE OF TIME

ENERAL JOHN. J. PERSHING has recently celebrated his seventy-fifth anniversary, an event which emphasizes how swift is the passage of time.

By DREW PEARSON and ROBERT S. ALLEN CONGRESS WON'T ADJOURN MAY 1

WASHINGTON - Recently Speaker Joe Byrns airily predicted that Congress would adjourn "around May 1".

Old-timers promptly crossed their fingers and added another month to this date. They knew it is a well-tried principle on Capitol Hill that when majority leaders begin prognosticating adjournment dates in the middle of a session, it is always wise

The rule is a sure bet this year. With the schedule of still uncompleted "must" legislation before it, Congress cannot wind up May 1. June 1 is a more likely guess, and even then the boys will have to break their necks to get through.

The platinum blonde chorus of "girls" was going through a torrid rumba, garbed in long yellow skirts and silver brassieres, one of which became unhooked and started to slip off.

The audience eyed it with mixed emotions of horror, anticipation, and mirth.

But without losing his step in the men's chorus, John Reached out and repaired the damage to his fellow while the audience's howls of laughter changed to cheers of applause for the feat.

John acknowledged the tribute with a cheery wave of his hand, much in the manner of his father, and the show went on.

One instance which peeved the President particulary occurred with the chief code expert of the War Department. He has charge of putting messages into secret cipher before cabling them abroad.

Roosevelt has a cousin, a Catholic clergyman, who wanted certain information. So the President gave him a personal note to the chief code expert, asking that he make the information available.

The code expert refused.

The relative went back to the President, who became considerably irked, and wrote a second note to the code expert. But again the code expert refused to supply the desired information.

Margalo Younger, an actress, is found mysteriously dead in the home of Dow Van Every, a collector of rare jewels, shortly after Van Every has recounted the gruesome history of the famous Camden ruby to the actress, whom he had just met, and Gary Maughan, an acquaintance. She had been wearing the huge ruby during the historical account against Van Every's wishes, scoffing at nie description of the jewel as a "murder stone". The doctor calls the police when he finds it a case of murder and explans the actress died from sharp needle-like instrument found at the base of the brain. Detective Keyes begins questioning Van Every and Maughan, the only others in the room at the time of Margalo's murder, when Joyce, Van Every's young niece, who lives with him, enters. Laura Randall, elderly companion to Joyce, is brought in for questioning Soon, the Japanese servant, tells of a Mr. Barrimore telephoning for Van Every, in his absence during the evening, on important business. Maughan, determined to help solve the murder, departs for Margalo's apartment to talk with her maid (NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY)

ALL SET FOR NAVAL RACE

TT IS perhaps charitable to observe that the new navy treaty signed at Iondon represents about the best that could be had in view of Japan's attitude, Italy's aloofness and the glowering menace of the Hitlerized Reich. Great Britain, France and the United States could scarcely be expected to make extensive concessions along lines of disarmament with so many disturbing factors visible at every hand.

The upshot of the treaty is that Great Britain and the United States virtually agree to maintain naval parity, but just where this will end if other nations insist upon engaging in a real naval race is by no means clear.

International conditions being what they are, no genuinely significant moves in the direction of arms reduction are at all possible. About everything that can be expected is the kind of a tentative and reluctant concord like that which has just issued from a parley in which the respective participants were jittery, suspicious and relatively insincere.

CONGRESS WON'T ADJOURN MAY 1 WASHINGTON - Recently Speaker Joe Byrns airily predicted that Congress

The platinum blonde chorus of "girls" was going through a torrid rumba, garbed in long yellow skirts and silver brassieres, one of which became unhooked and started to slip off.

The audience eyed it with mixed emotions of horror, anticipation, and mirth.

But without losing his step in the men's chorus, John Reached out and repaired the damage to his fellow while the audience's howls of laughter changed to cheers of applause for the feat.

John acknowledged the tribute with a cheery wave of his hand, much in the manner of his father, and the show went on.

PRESIDENT'S COUSIN

EN RUBY MURDER

Margalo Younger, an actress, is found mysteriously desid in the home of Dow Van Every, a collector of rare jewels, shortly after Van Every has recounted the gruesome history of the famous Camden ruby to the actress, whom he had just met, and Gary Maughan, an acquaintance. She had been wearing the huge ruby during the historical account against Van Every's wishes, scoffing at nic description of the jewel as a "murder stone". The doctor calls the police when he finds it a case of niurder, and explans the actress died from a sharp needle-like instrument found at the base of the brain. Detective Keyes begins questioning Van Every and Maughan, the only others in the room at the time of Margalo's murder, when Joyce, Van Every's young niece, who lives with him, enters. Laura Randall, elderly companion to Joyce, is brought in for questioning. Soon, the Japanese servant, tells of a Mr. Barrimore telephoning for Van Every, in his absence during the evening, on important business. Maughan, determined to help solve the murder, departs for Margalo's apartment to talk with her maid. (NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY)

Barrymore to Present Sleepy Hollow Legend

American Classic to Be Recited Monday Evening; Two-Way Radio Broadcasts Make Appearance

Lionel Barrymore is going to read one of the best known of all American classics, "The Legend of Sleepy Hollow," in his program Monday night, April 6. With Barrymore on the broadcast again will be little Cora Sue Collins, child star of the movies, who has teamed up with him on several previous programs.

In addition to his reading of the Washington Irving work, Barrymore will continue in his role of commentator for the music which will be played by Sigmund Rom- & WIIIIIIIII berg's orchestra in the broadcast over a WEAF-NBC network at 9:30 p.m. (EST). Josephine Tuminia, coloratura soprano of the San Francisco Opera whom Romberg introduces to radio listeners when he took his program to the West Coast, will again return to sing "Marietta's Song" from "Die Tote Stadt" by E. W. Korngold. The other vocalist on the program will be Felix Knight who sings Romberg's own composition "I Built A Dream" from "May Wine." * * *

It is also pointed out that the two way radio will enable the ambulance driver, while en route to the hospital, to flash word as to the condition of the patient and whether or not an operating room should be placed in readiness.

The Mobile Transmitters are to be concealed within the body of the cars which, in patrol cars, will act as protection against gunfire putting the sending set out of commission.

The Evanston plan calls for a 15-watt transmitter and receiver blished in police headquarters.

Al Espinosa, Chicago Veteran, Two Strokes Behind "Lighthorse Harry"

AUGUSTA, Ga., April 4.—(UP) -Harry Cooper of Chicago was the man they were watching today as the all-star field started the second round of the Augusta National golf championship.

Cooper began today's links exercises two strokes ahead of his nearest rival, and considered in the light of a deeply rain-soaked course made all the more difficult by rising winds and frosty temperatures, the margin was a difficult one to erase.

Give away a stroke to par at Augusta these days and it's many a hole before opportunity to erase e error presents itself.

Cooper glued together a grand brace of 35's, each one under par and they added up to 70 which was two strokes better than the par 72 made by Al Espinosa, Chicago

Far back in the pack, with a first-round 78 was Gene Sarazen. defending champion, on a par with him was the man the Georgia galleries and the sports writers would like to see win, Bobby Jones. Between them and the leading Mr. Cooper were no fewer than 24 players, some of whom have real chances to take the title.

Grouped at 74 were Billy Burke, fermer national open champ, Ted Luther and Horton Smith. Hi Picard, popular favorite, veteran Bob Cruickshank and Lawson Little were three of six tied at 75. Paul Runyan, consistent New Yorker and Sam Parks of Pittsburgh, national open champ, were a stroke back with 76's.

Second round was set for today and third and fourth rounds for

Negro Athletes to Feature Olympics THEATR

BY CENTRAL PRESS

OWENS, PEACOCK, Burke, Metcalfe, Johnson, Luvalle, Williams—the Olympic games in Germany this summer begin to take on a decided Booker T. Washington aspect as far as athletes from the United States are concerned.

So pronounced is blackface among Olympic candidates that the confused judges are more than likely to announce the winners of high jump, broad jump and sprints as simply "Mr. Bones" and let it

Jesse Owens, Ohio State star who smashed world records in the broad jump, 100 yards and 220 yards last year, seems to head the Harlemesque hegiro. His coach, Larry Snyder, says he will do the represented by a strong team, with 100 meters, 200 meters and broad jump if they'll let him, that is, if running at the same time.

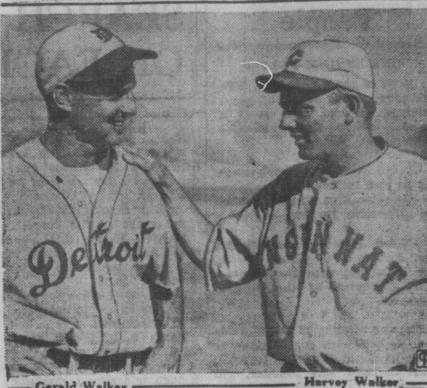

Watch Big Ten Meet

Owens' next competition will be in the Penn relays, April 24, after which he will go in the Big Ten, national collegiate and Olympic trials. He wants to show his stuff especially in the Big Ten meet May 22-23. He thinks he will broad jump 27 feet before the summer is over whether it be in Columbus or Berlin. His present mark is 26 feet 81/4 inches.

Next in order we take up the case of Eulace Peacock, Temple The cold weather of the present university's star sprinter, who has made even Owens chase him over that he "has a short Achilles ten-Tod Thompson, new Pickaway don, causing an equinus of the foot." This is common among will be on the job sometime next negroes, according to the physiclogists, and enables them to get off faster and keep moving faster than Caucasians. Peacock also has an elongated calceas (yowsah!) or heel bone, which gives him increased leverage.

Dave Burke is the Marquette university "Dark Angel" who is expected to high jump his rivals right up into the clouds and leave them hanging there while he soars took Walter Marty's measure recently in the Long Beach relays. Burke has done 6 feet 8 15-16 and will do 6 feet 9 or 10 before the season is too old. That's enough high jumping to take him to Ber-Metcalfe Again

AUGUSTA, Ga., April 4.—(UP) -Harry Cooper of Chicago was the man they were watching today as the all-star field started the second round of the Augusta National golf championship.

Cooper began today's links exerciaes two strokes ahead of his nearest rival, and considered in the light of a deeply rain-soaked course made all the more difficult by rising winds and frosty temperatures, the margin was a difficult one to erase.

Give away a stroke to par at Augusta these days and it's many • hole before opportunity to erase he error presents itself.

Cooper glued together a grand brace of 35's, each one under par and they added up to 70 which was two strokes better than the par 72 made by Al Espinesa, Chicago

Far back in the pack, with a first-round 78 was Gene Sarazen, defending champion, on a par with him was the man the Georgia galleries and the sports writers would like to see win, Bobby Jones. Between them and the leading Mr. Cooper were no fewer than 24 players, some of whom have real chances to take the title.

Grouped at 74 were Billy Burke, fermer national open champ, Ted Luther and Horton Smith. Hi Picard, popular favorite, veteran Bob Cruickshank and Lawson Little were three of six tied at 75. Paul Runyan, consistent New Yorker and Sam Parks of Pittsburgh, national open champ, were
